

THE SCI 07 CHRONICLE

Oct 2013– Vol VII

Last call before turning 30!

HOMEcoming

Big thanks to everyone that made it out to Homecoming last year.! Great times at Clark, Alfies and a good old fashioned kegger.

In the words of one frosh observing in awe of Sci 07's descent on campus and mass mobilization of keggers (including moving it to a church parking lot), "There's just a different sort of attitude to your year, it's way more bad-ass. Like you can chew concrete"

Special thanks to Chris Johnson, Charlie Ferguson, Amy Gingrich, Dave Connolly, Brent Beaumont and Mark Davis for all their work pulling the event together.

Hey Sci '07!

QUEENS UPDATE

In case you haven't read a Queen's newspaper in the last 365 days, I did it for you.

Main Campus and West Campus are, well, not the same campus. For the first time since 2002, Queen's updated its Campus Master Plan, with a focus on the linkage between the University's four main properties: Main Campus, West Campus, Innovation Park (Princess St. and Bath Rd.), and the new Isabel Bader Centre for the Performing Arts, which is set to open in 2014.

Oh, speaking of which, the Isabel Bader Centre will be a new stone-and-glass concert hall and arts complex between the Tett Centre and the Stella Buck Building on King Street West, and is set to open in 2014.

I think you need a wine buddy for that. The AMS is undertaking an overhaul of Alfie's, renovating the 37-year-old nightclub and re-branding it as "The Underground," the most recent attempt to address the club's continuing financial losses. (The nightclub was previously named "The Underground" when it first opened in 1976, and changed to "Alfie's" in 1979, after Alfie Pierce, a Queen's athletics legend). Over the past 12 years, the AMS has spent upwards of $330,000 on renovations at the pub.

Chicken Caesar wraps at your doorstep. As a result of increased undergraduate enrollment, 98 first-year students will move into the JDUC in September. It's just a temporary measure: in December 2012, approval from the Board of Trustees was given for a $70 million new residence project. The two new residence buildings, similar to Legget and Watts, are expected to be open in fall 2015. One will border St. Lawrence Ave., Stuart and Albert Streets and the other will be on the south side of campus on Leonard Field between Morris and McNeill House Halls.

Their mother disapproves. Kingston police are looking for thieves who stole the Baja SAE race car from McLaughlin Hall in June. Seriously?

Homecoming. It's back, in university-endorsed glory, now spread over two separate weekends. October 4-6 will host alumni with years ending in '8 (5, 15, 25 year, etc.) with a game vs. Laurier, and October 18-20 will host years ending in '3 (10, 20, 30 year, etc.) vs. Guelph.

Finally – "you know you when to Queen's when..." you get this pick-up line: Are your eyes named Macintosh and Corry? Because I'm lost in them.

Ciao for now
Andy Chong
